Offerings for Educators
Fall/Winter 2016-17 School Year

Dinosaurs Among Us Educators’ Evening
Friday, October 7, 2016; 4:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.
Join us for an evening celebrating our newest temporary exhibition Dinosaurs Among Us. Dinosaurs Among Us examines how one group of dinosaurs evolved into the fascinating living creatures we call birds. The exhibition highlights the continuities between living dinosaurs—birds—and their extinct ancestors, showcasing remarkable new evidence for what scientists now call one of the best-documented evolutionary transitions in the history of life. This educators-only reception is an opportunity for teachers to view the exhibition, hear from the curators, network with other educators, and gather resources on how to use the exhibition with their students. K-12 Teachers.

Election Day Professional Development for NYC Teachers
Tuesday, November 8, 2016; 8:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.
This professional day is designed for teachers who want to strengthen their ability to use Museum resources to teach science and social studies. Participants will have the opportunity to choose from a range of breakout sessions that will utilize the Museum’s digital, print, and exhibition resources to connect with the science curriculum in ways that are engaging for students. Cost: $35 per participant includes continental breakfast, lunch and Museum resources. K-12 Teachers.

¡Cuba! Educators’ Evening
Friday, December 2, 2016; 4:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.
Join us for an evening celebrating our upcoming temporary exhibition ¡Cuba!. This bilingual exhibition will explore the extraordinary biodiversity across Cuba’s remote forests, deep caves, expansive wetlands, and dazzling reefs through immersive exhibits. In addition, the exhibition will highlight Cuba’s culture, its people, and its history. This is an opportunity for teachers to view the exhibition, hear from the curators, network with other educators, and gather resources on how to use the exhibition with their students. Participants will receive Educator Guides and related activities that provide tools to align science content with Common Core State Standards in ELA for reading and writing. K-12 Teachers.

Mid-Winter Institute: ¡Cuba!
Tuesday, February 21 & Wednesday, February 22, 2017; 9:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.
This two-day workshop will introduce teachers to our upcoming temporary exhibition, ¡Cuba!. Participants will work with Museum staff and scientists to learn about biodiversity and conservation and how they can use NGSS-aligned resources and teaching strategies to prepare students for a Museum learning experience. 6-12 Teachers.

The Museum gratefully acknowledges the Richard and Karen LeFrak Exhibition and Education Fund.
