Mack Lipkin Man and Nature Series THIS YEAR IN CONSERVATION

PUBLIC EVENT

WEDNESDAY, 9 OCTOBER 2013
6:30 TO 8:00 P.M.

Join leading conservation professionals for a panel discussion about how innovations, milestones, and events over the past year have challenged and inspired conservation action on the world stage and in their own work.

SPEAKERS

- Stewart Diemont, Department of Environmental Resources Engineering, College of Environmental Science and Forestry, State University of New York
- Rodolfo Dirzo, Department of Biology, Stanford University
- Jane Carter Ingram, Ecosystem Services, Wildlife Conservation Society
- Moderator: Eleanor J. Sterling, Center for Biodiversity and Conservation, American Museum of Natural History

This event is free and open to the public. Space is available on a first-come, first-served basis. For more information, please contact us at biodiversity@amnh.org.

Please use the West 77th Street entrance to the Museum, between Columbus Avenue and Central Park West.

The Mack Lipkin Man and Nature Series was established in honor of Dr. Mack Lipkin, Sr., by his many friends and admirers. Dr. Lipkin was a physician who was a gentle and powerful force in advancing the most humane and caring practices of medicine. The Museum is proud to welcome Stewart Diemont, Rodolfo Dirzo, and Jane Carter Ingram as the 2013 Mack Lipkin Man and Nature Series Fellows.
